BRIEF HISTORY OF THE CITY

Eastpointe is located in Macomb county, ten miles northeast of Detroit, Michigan. It borders 8- Mile Road on the northern edge of Detroit. Eastpointe was formerly known as East Detroit and was first settled by French, Irish and German immigrants.

According to Eastpointe, Images of Modern America, Eastpointe was known as Halfway Village since the settlement was originally located halfway between the Macomb County seat at Mount Clemens and downtown Detroit. It was a convenient rest stop for horse-and-buggy drivers along the former Gratiot military plank highway. A post office set up in 1897 was given the name "Half-way." Most of the area was agricultural in nature, with farmers growing food for their own consumption or to be sold at Detroit's Eastern Market. Businesses developed along the Gratiot road and the community became known as the Gateway from Detroit to Macomb County. This growing city attracted large numbers of immigrants looking for new homes, safe neighborhoods, and good schools.

Prior to 1924, most of the village formed a part of Erin Township. A reincorporation took place in January 1929, and Halfway village became the City of East Detroit. The name was changed to Eastpointe in 1992 after a public referendum.

Quality parks and active recreation programs have always been part of the community life. A strong emphasis remains on clean parks, picnicking areas, and youth activities. Many of the Mom-and-Pop businesses that had started in the early part of the century survived a later outflux of shopping to nearby malls.

MANAGEMENT OPPORTUNITIES AND CHALLENGES

Opportunities and challenges were recently assessed via recent City Council goal setting, stakeholder interviews, and an electronic survey. The incoming City Manager will be faced with a number of opportunities and challenges that are not uncommon.

The electronic survey produced the following results for the new City Manager to focus on: development and redevelopment (30%); enhance quality of life (25%); fiscal management (22%); enhance Innovation (16%) and improve property values (6%).

Other opportunities and challenges from the stakeholder interviews include:

Fiscal Affairs

- The next City Manager must continue fiscal oversight and responsibility with the ability to take a stand on spending when appropriate.
- The next City Manager must be able to balance the new short-term initiatives with those that have already been approved and are designed to sustain the City in the long term.
- Although the General Fund has a fund balance percentage of 56% ($12.3 million), $5.9 million was committed to last year's pension and OPEB contributions and $3.5 million is committed to budget stabilization and other reserves. The remaining balance is unassigned.
- Eastpointe has a low debt to taxable value ratio of 1.7% resulting in a 94% extra capacity within the legal debt margin resulting in $51 million of total additional capacity.
- The twenty-year public safety millage that was passed in 2015 will likely need to be supplemented approximately five years before the twenty-year millage renewal date.

- The City's current pension system is 51% funded. The City is taking steps to systematically pay off the liabilities created by previous benefit plans. The General Retirement System was closed to some new participants. Pension multipliers were reduced and employee contributions were increased.

Organization

- The next City Manager must be skilled in succession planning with the ability to identify and attract talent to the organization. This is an opportunity to build a multifaceted team and look at organizational realignment.
- The racial make-up of the current City staff also does not reflect the community. An opportunity exists for the next City Manager to look at the current hiring practices and recruit from a multicultural pool of employees when vacancies arise.
- Streamline and coordinate communications between departments in order to help staff members proactively communicate with public to resolve issues before being brought to the City Council.
- Perform oversight of the Deputy Clerk and Assistant/Personnel for the purpose of ensuring City Clerk and human resource functions

Community

- Communication and transparency with employees, residents, businesses, and all stakeholder organizations are critical skills for the next City Manager.

- Attentive listening abilities and a genuine desire to engage the Council, staff, and community in innovative problem solving is expected. Attending community events and being present and visible in the City is essential.
- Comprehensive and coordinated marketing, branding, and social media is needed to attract and retain young families in collaboration with the School District's efforts. Younger families could be informed about the benefits of investing in the City's attractive and affordable homes, including being within an easy commute to Downtown.
- The City's equity and inclusion efforts must be embraced by the next City Manager. Income disparities exist in the community. Dealing with the probable continuing racial integration of the community using cultural competency tools is essential.
- Enhanced home ownership opportunities in the face of a growing private sector rental home business marketplace is needed.
- Reaching out to community leaders and be involved in the Chamber, PACE or join a service group is needed. Attending the Cruise and Memorial Day Parade and get to know members of the organizations that volunteer to make Eastpointe a community, not just a city is desired. Youth development is a key area of opportunity. The next City Manager will be expected to embrace the rising generation of new City leaders.

Infrastructure and Economic Development

- Work toward more Five-Year street funding options and take the logical steps to move forward with ways to make possible joint revenues and ventures with business and/or organizations to help move and finalize community infrastructure and development goals.
